What are the advantages of Natural Gas?

Several advantages of natural gas make it a clear winner in the energy industry.

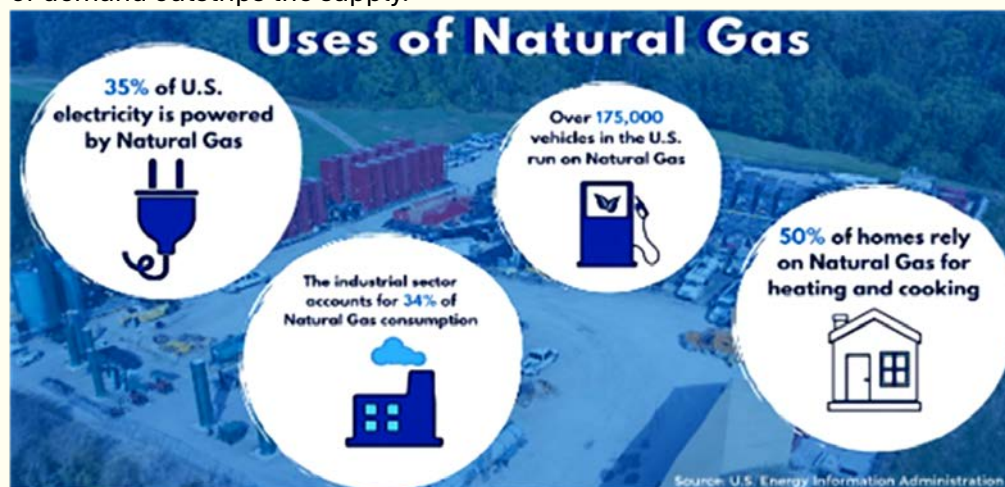

A primary advantage of natural gas is that it's simply clean – the cleanest fossil fuel burned for energy use. It doesn't generate ash residues or sulfur oxides. Its greenhouse gas emissions are as much as 55% lower than coal when used to produce comparable amounts of electricity, and today's power plants fueled by natural gas emit less than 10% of the pollutants coming from coal-fired plants.

Natural gas is the cleanest fossil fuel on the market today because it produces much lower emissions than those of other fossil fuels like coal.

Another advantage of natural gas is that it is more effective – both in cost and efficiency. Natural gas can be over 30% more affordable than other fuel sources such as diesel.

Finally, one of the most important advantages of natural gas is that it's a safe, reliable energy option, which makes it a natural partner to renewables – quickly stepping in when solar, wind, and hydropower supplies are not readily available or demand outstrips the supply.

Fun Facts About Natural Gas!

Natural gas is not just for energy. It is also used to make many everyday things like sunglasses, cell phones, carpets, and even heart valves and artificial limbs.

✂️ RECIPE: Creamy Zucchini Orzo

Ingredients:

- 3 tbsp salted butter, 3-4 cloves of minced garlic
- 1 box of dry orzo pasta, 2 tbsp fresh thyme
- 2 medium zucchinis, ½ bunch kale finely shredded
- 3 cups low sodium chicken or veggie broth, zest and juice of 1 lemon
- 1 teaspoon onion powder, salt and black pepper, ¾ cup grated parmesan
- ½ cup whole milk or canned full fat coconut milk
- 2 tbsp chopped fresh parsley

Directions:

1. Sauté butter and garlic. Add orzo and thyme; toast 2–3 minutes. Stir in zucchini and kale. Add broth, lemon zest, lemon juice, onion powder, salt, and pepper. Simmer 8–10 minutes, stirring until the orzo is creamy and tender.
2. Stir in milk, Parmesan, and parsley until heated through. Add extra broth if needed to keep the orzo creamy.
3. Serve topped with fresh thyme, extra butter, and Parmesan, if desired.
